

BECOME A MEMBER

Indigenous Remote Communications Association (IRCA) has recently expanded its role and representation to become the national peak body for the First Nations media industry. Since the 1980s, our broadcasting and media industry has grown from local broadcasting to regional and national broadcasting and media production.

Your voice is central to the advocacy and representation work of our strong and important industry. We encourage you to get involved through active engagement at IRCA meetings and events, and participation in industry advisory groups.

Become a member and support the development of a sustainable and robust First Nations media industry. There are four membership categories available to organisations and individuals who are directly involved or have an interest in building our diverse and innovative industry.
